

Harrison's

Friends; Every time I sit down to write this letter to you all, I am reminded how this is not my forte. Life moves a little too fast for my quiet, reflective soul to capture the goings on and get it to you all in appropriate time. The last time I updated you all, I was sharing the end of the semester of school...now we are only 4 days away from the end of the school year (Praise the Lord!). We have so much to be thankful for in the ways that He has brought us through this year.

You all were so kind in your responses to our last update. Thank you for the words of encouragement and prayers. I still have the messages "marked as unread" (although I have read them) because I want to reply back to each one of you. We will see if I can make that happen.

As I walked along the seaside this morning I was conversing with our Father about the huge magnitude of what he had brought us here to do. It is impossible. I literally have a page in my journal titled "Things Too Big for Me" that I find myself constantly adding new scenarios to. And as I sat on a bench, I felt the nudge of the Spirit to lay my head on his shoulder and rest. A Mary moment. I was overcome (like many times before), that the one we follow is not a book, not a set of rules, not an ethereal hope, but a living active powerful entity who made us and became us. Who transcends us and knows us. Who is with us and will come for us. And for those reasons, I can move forward...my teeny tiny shuffling steps forward..in the work he asked me to do.

Friends, hope and life have been the theme of this spring. We have had some stormy days for sure. But in every area we felt like spring plants pushing through the dirt from the cold ground.

See the Welcome Center bulletin board for the full missionary prayer letters.
